

Teacher Job Search

1. General Job Boards
 2. Specialist Recruitment Agencies
 3. School & Trust Websites
 4. Independent and Private Schools
 5. Alternative Avenues for Job Searching
 6. Supply Teaching as a Short-Term Option
 7. Related Roles in Education
 8. International Teaching Opportunities
 9. Additional Resources for Support
-

1. General Job Boards

These platforms list vacancies across different types of schools and subjects:

- TES (Times Educational Supplement) – One of the most comprehensive job sites for teaching roles in the UK.
 - Indeed – A general job board that also lists teaching vacancies.
 - Gov.uk Teaching Vacancies – The UK government's free job listing service for state-funded schools.
 - Eteach – A dedicated education job board featuring roles in primary, secondary, and grammar schools.
 - Guardian Jobs – Education Section – Frequently advertises teaching and leadership roles for experienced educators.
 - LinkedIn Jobs – A resource for networking and discovering education-related roles.
-

3. School and Trust Websites

Many grammar schools and Multi-Academy Trusts (MATs) advertise on their websites:

- Grammar School Heads' Association (GSHA) – Lists vacancies specifically in grammar schools.
- Multi-Academy Trusts (MATs) – Some large MATs operate multiple grammar schools and often have dedicated career pages.

2. Specialist Recruitment Agencies

Education-focused recruiters can match teachers with vacancies in schools across the UK. Some of the top agencies include:

- Hays Education – Specialises in placing teachers in both permanent and temporary roles.
- Reed Education – A well-known recruiter with a dedicated education sector.
- Protocol Education – Focuses on matching teachers, teaching assistants, and support staff with schools.
- Hourglass Education – Experts in placing teachers in secondary schools across England.
- Creative Education Recruitment – Provides staffing solutions for various teaching roles, including support staff.
- Teach First – Specialises in leadership and teaching roles.
- Randstad Education – Offers recruitment services for teachers, cover supervisors, and education support staff.
- Teaching Personnel – Matches teachers with a variety of school settings.
- Academics Ltd – Focuses on long-term placements and permanent teaching jobs.
- Engage Education – Works with teachers to find roles in schools across the UK.
- Step Teachers – Provides recruitment support for teachers and classroom assistants.
- Prospero Teaching – Offers teaching placements across the UK and internationally.
- Vision Teaching – A London-based recruitment agency specialising in education roles.
- Education Boutique – Specialises in bespoke education roles, including private tuition and home-schooling.

4. Independent and Private Schools

If you are open to working outside the state sector, consider applying to independent schools. These schools often value experience in grammar school settings.

- Independent Schools Council (ISC) Jobs Board – Lists roles in private schools across the UK.
- HMC (Headmasters' & Headmistresses' Conference) Vacancies – Features leadership and teaching roles in independent schools.

5. Alternative Avenues for Job Searching

- Local Authority Websites – Many councils have dedicated teaching job sections for state-funded schools.
 - Networking – Engage with colleagues, former employers, and education professionals to uncover unadvertised vacancies.
 - Social Media – Follow schools, trusts, and recruitment agencies on LinkedIn, Twitter, and Facebook to stay updated on job openings.
 - School Websites – Visit the career pages of grammar schools in your area to find direct job postings.
 - Relocation – If possible, consider roles in different regions where demand for teachers may be higher.
 - Educational Charities and NGOs – Consider working with organisations that support education outside traditional school settings, such as tutoring disadvantaged students.
-

6. Supply Teaching as a Short-Term Option

While searching for a permanent position, supply teaching can provide flexibility and experience across different schools. Some recommended supply teaching agencies include:

- Simply Education
 - New Directions Education
 - Capita Education
 - Affinity Workforce
 - PK Education
-

7. Related Roles in Education

If you're considering alternative career paths within education, here are some options:

- Curriculum Development – Work with exam boards or publishers to create educational materials.
- Educational Consultancy – Advise schools on curriculum improvements and teaching strategies.
- Private Tutoring – Offer one-on-one tutoring for students preparing for exams.
- Exam Marking – Work as an examiner for GCSEs, A-Levels, or other qualifications.

- Temporary or Contract Roles – Consider maternity cover positions or short-term contracts to gain experience and potential long-term employment.
 - Adult Education & Corporate Training – Deliver courses for adult learners or corporate clients.
 - EdTech & Online Teaching – Work for online learning platforms or digital education providers.
-

8. International Teaching Opportunities

If you're open to teaching abroad, international schools and educational organisations offer great opportunities:

- COBIS (Council of British International Schools) – Lists vacancies for British international schools worldwide.
 - Teach Away – Helps teachers find positions globally.
 - Search Associates – A well-known recruitment agency for international teaching roles.
 - The British Council – Offers overseas teaching placements and opportunities.
 - International Schools Services (ISS) – Assists teachers in securing jobs abroad.
-

9. Additional Resources for Support

- National Education Union (NEU) – Provides career advice and legal support for teachers.
- Association of School and College Leaders (ASCL) – Offers professional development and job search support for school leaders.
- Education Support Partnership – A charity providing mental health and financial support for educators.